

YELLOW GIRL GOT AWAY WITH $70 ROLL

Revolutionist Had Sought Her Aid in Finding Helen Gould to Ask for Funds.

Louis Las, who came from Poland six months ago, says he is a Holy Revolutionist. The same it appears is another name for the same person, only Las doesn't wear his hair as long as Gorky or change his hotel address as often. He has been at No. 20 East One Hundred and Fifth street for some time. On Monday night he saw in a window a poster saying "The Miss Helen Gould Association" was giving a grand social reception and ball that evening at McFarland's Hotel, One Hundredth street and Third avenue. Louis Las headed straight for McFarland's Hall. He meant to ask Miss Gould for money to help along the Holy Revolutionists hand the Car a lemon, made-out of a gas pipe. He paid twenty-five cents to get in.

So far as he could tell all the members of the association were colored, and he was the only white man in sight. He asked a likely-looking yellow girl to help him find Miss Gould. The yellow girl took him into a corner and began telling him the story of her life. Then she left, promising to find Miss Gould for him right away. He waited, but she didn't come back. Later he missed the roll of $70 he had carried in his vest-pocket.

How the Old Hoss Lost.

(A Racing Story.)

By Walter A. Sinclair.

(Former Commissioner McAdoo Says the Pool-Rooms Bet on "His Finish.")

"Twas in the days of pool-rooms, lad— And that was long ago— When 'phones were bold and men were bad

In frittering their dough. So gather round me, little one, And I will tell to you How once I wagered all my "mun" Upon Bill McAdoo.

Commissioners in those days, lad, Were easy on the land. They never wrote upon a pad In fine Italian hand. Injunctions kept the pool-rooms wide, Try as the coppers might, And never once the Chief replied With words on "hell's delight."

With trembling hands I took my roll And to the pool-room ran. All out of breath I reached the goal Before the race began. "On McAdoo!" I cried. "What odds, Before this race is run?" The bookie said: "Who rides him? Squads? Twenty-three for one."

And now "They're at the quarter!"

WOMAN SHOT DEAD, HUSBAND IS HELD

HUNTINGTON, L. I., April 20.—Coroner Gibson today held an inquest into the cause of death of Mrs. Elizabeth Meineke, who was found dead with a bullet wound in her heart at her home near here. Charles Meineke, the husband of the dead woman, was examined at some length by the Coroner, and held for further examination on Saturday morning.

The story told by Meineke was to the effect that his wife grabbed a pistol that was on a dresser in the room, and was about to use it to end her life when he, designing her purpose, grabbed her, and a scuffle for the possession of the weapon followed. By accident the weapon was discharged and resulted in the injury which caused the woman's death.

This story differed considerably from the previous version of the shooting. A fifteen-year-old son of Meineke originally said that the woman got out of bed to get a bottle of beer and in moving about the room knocked the revolver from the dresser, the bullet entering the woman's stomach, and then piercing her heart. This same story was also told by the father of the boy. It is said the couple had frequent quarrels.

His Only Hope.

(From the Chicago Tribune.) "Why don't you let up on me?" complained the lad man of the village. "This is the seventeenth time this year you've had me arrested and fined for selling whiskey without a license. If you do it again I'll move out of the damned old town."

"If you do," gasped the village attorney, "I'll have to move, too!"

Pretty Spring Styles for Children

Of all the eighty-odd stores under this big roof, there is none more popular, either with the public or with ourselves, nor one we take more pride in, than this for children.

Recently enlarged, it stands now among the largest. It has always led the town in giving values.

Its strong feature is the common-sense price. It is a store in which daintiness and delicacy of design and finish are fundamental essentials, but, while it yields to no collection in New York in the character of its goods or in the careful regard to new ideas, it interests mothers as well by its moderate prices as by its excellence and elegance. Look at these for examples:

Children's Cloth Box Coats—white, with fine black stripes; made double-breasted, with military buttons; collar and cuffs of white linen, with silk embroidered emblem; collar and cuffs are detachable. Sizes, 2 to 5 years. Saturday only at $3.25. Regularly $2.95.

Children's Box Coats—of fine white mohair; made double-breasted, with novelty buttons; collar and cuffs trimmed. Sizes, 2 to 5 years. Saturday only at $2.75.

Saving $10 on your Daughter's Suit

One of the best-selling suits in our whole pre-Easter showing of garments for misses and girls was an Eton model made of an all-wool Panama cloth, in the style shown in this illustration.

It sold so well that we sold out of the style before Easter and ordered more which didn't arrive until too late for Easter selling.

The manufacturer takes part of the loss—we take some. You don't take any at all—it's all pure gain for you, for the suit is just as pretty, just as stylish and just as serviceable as ever, and we have cut the price $10.

Popular Shoes at Popular Prices from an Extremely Popular Shoe Store

This shoe store of ours was a large one at the beginning, has been twice enlarged and is to-day facing the necessity for a further increase in its selling space.

It owes its popularity to three very simple but important features of its policy. First—it sells good shoes. Next—it sells good styles. Finally, it sells for moderate prices.

The question here is never "How much can we get?" but "For how little can we sell?" Some examples of what moderate prices will do here—

Men's $3 Tan Shoes and Oxfords for $1.95

Women's $3.50 and $5 Shoes and Oxfords at $1.95

The $5 shoes are samples and in the smaller sizes. The $3.50 shoes are regular stock—bought under the same favorable conditions as the men's.

Styles are the prettiest of the year—all the fashion touches and points of finish that mark the up-to-the-minute shoe are represented. All sizes, of course. Kidskin, patent leather, tan, white, pink and blue.

Misses' and Children's Summer Shoes

A large variety of styles, leathers and colors, including tan Bluchers, patent leather button shoes and several pretty styles in Oxfords and sandals.

Prices according to sizes are 98c, $1.25 and $1.50.
